Kigali, Rwanda, January 9 (Infosplusgabon) - A Rwandan medical practitioner, identified as Dr. Raymond Dusabe, was recently found stabbed several times in the back and was found lying face down on the dining table in his apartment in Cape Town, South Africa, where he was during last festive season, a diplomatic source confirmed Tuesday in Kigali.

In a media statement, the Rwandan Embassy in Pretoria confirmed the murder which occurred on 28 December, 2017.

Dr. Dusabe was on leave in Cape Town, South Africa.

Reports by South African Police said that the victim was fatally stabbed in his apartment by unidentified individuals.

It wasn't immediately clear how long the Rwandan national had been dead or whether another person was in the home when he was found slain.
Investigators have also recovered a knife, believed to be the murder weapon to kill the Rwandan doctor who was employed as Gynecological Oncologist at King Faisal Hospital in Kigali.

This assassination occurred a few months after a diplomatic row broke out between Rwanda and South Africa after authorities in Pretoria gave two diplomats at the Rwandan High Commission in Pretoria 48 hours to leave the country in March 2014.

In retaliation, Rwanda expelled six high ranking South African diplomats.
Rwandan doctor found killed mysteriously in South Africa
Mardi, 09 Janvier 2018 19:48 - Mis à jour Mardi, 09 Janvier 2018 19:49

© Copyright Infosplusgabon