

Cairo, Egypt, October 28 (Infosplusgabon) - The Executive Committee of CAF has decided to schedule a match between Ethiopia and Rwanda to fill the 16th national team slot qualified for the final tournament of the Total Africa Nations Championship (CHAN), scheduled for Morocco, from 12 January to 4 February 2018.

According to the CAF media outlet, the first leg will be played on 5 November 2017, in Ethiopia and the return leg a week later in Rwanda. Both teams were eliminated in the final round of the qualifiers in the East Zone.

The decision of the CAF executive committee will bring the number of teams representing the Central East Zone for the final tournament to three.

The draw for the final tournament is scheduled for 17 November 2017.

The CHAN, which is in its 5th edition, is a competition exclusively for players in the national championships of their respective countries.
